IMPORTANT INFORMATION

The Criminal Code of Canada states that:

Order Denying Access to Information

110.2(1) If an order is made under subsection 110.1(3), a Provincial Court judge may, on application by the person who applied for the order or on the judge's own motion, if the judge considers that it is necessary to protect the security of the person or of anyone known to the person, make an order prohibiting access to, and the disclosure of, any or all of the following:

- a) any information relating to the order made under that subsection;
- b) any information relating to a warrant issued under subsection 110.1(5);
- c) any information relating to a search and seizure conducted without a warrant under subsection 110.1(6); and
- d) any information relating to the order made under this subsection.

Order to Delete Identifying Information

110.1(3) If an order is made under subsection 110.1(3) or 110.2(1), a Provincial Court judge may, on application by the person who applied for the order referred to in subsection 110.1(3) or on the judge's own motion, if the judge considers that it is necessary to protect the security of the person or of anyone known to the person, make an order, subject to any terms and conditions that the judge considers desirable in the circumstances, directing that:

- a) copies be made of any documents relating to the order under subsection 110.1(3) or 110.2(1), as the case may be including the order itself;
- b) any information that could identify the person who applied for the order referred to in subsection 110.1(3) or anyone known to the person to be deleted from those copies; and
- c) the documents related to the order made under subsection 110.1(3) or 110.2(1), as the case may be, including the order itself, to which the public has access or that are made available to or required to be served on any person are to be the edited copies referred to in paragraph (b).
